PHILLIP STRATI • AESTHETIC DEVELOPMENTS

The challenge was to find a product that would allow us to maintain our curvaceous design and still utilise our chosen facade building materials to maintain our Mediterranean brief for the home.

Dincel played a crucial role in bringing our vision to life, offering a product that could be seamlessly integrated with our design. It's flexibility allowed us to maintain our vision's integrity, unlike conventional methods that often force design compromises around materials. This seamless integration enhanced our building methods. We achieved substantial cost reductions and expedited the construction timeline by several months, all without compromising our original design.
