Going into this project it was imperative we find a build method that not only saved on build time but could easily handle construction difficulties we were likely to encounter on-site. Having successfully used Dincel in the past for the Maxon Group it was an easy decision to use the Dincel Structural Walling system once again. When your architect, without any prior consultation, also recommends the same system... it's a testament to the enviable credibility that Dincel enjoys within the building industry.

Bonus points not only does Dincel wall provide a durable finish, but there's no need to strip the formwork.
